There are now eighty-five of the 119 counties in Kentucky that have voted dry. No more local option elections can be held until thirty days after the November general election. So that the above list tells the story of the first round of campaign under the county unit law. Six or eight contests are scheduled for December, including Todd, Logan, Lyon and Scott counties. It will be noted that out of fourteen counties contests the Anti-Saloon forces have won twelve victories and the liquor forces two.

DEATH

Of Mr. James Moore at Mooreville Was Sudden.

Mr. James Moore, aged seventy-five years, one of Mooreville's respected citizens died suddenly at his home at that place last night at about 11 o'clock. Mr. Moore was in his usual health all day yesterday, and retired last night as usual. His death came as a surprise and shock to the community. He leaves a wife and two children, who have the sympathy of many friends. The deceased was a member of the Christian church at Maud. Funeral services will occur at that place this afternoon, and the interment will take place in the family cemetery.

Court in Marion.

Enterprise: The grand jury up until yesterday afternoon had returned the following indictments: Concealed deadly weapons, 3; selling liquor to minor, 15; malicious cutting, 4; assault and battery, 2; working on Sabbath, 2; selling liquor without license, 1; petit larceny, 1; gaming, 5. Late yesterday afternoon the grand jury returned 24 additional indictments. On account of the late hour at which they were returned they could not be classified.

T. L. Payne, who sued the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company for $5,000 damages Wednesday, received a judgment for $1,500. Payne lost several fingers by falling under a train at the depot here several months ago in attempting to alight.

The damage suit of Frank Corcoran against the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company was dismissed on a demurrer filed by its petition by the defendant.

Capt. T. D. English was fined $25 for auctioneering without a license. He lives in Danville and recently cried a sale in this city.

MEADE COUNTY

GOES DRY

By a Majority of One Vote.—According to Official Count.

The Sun received a telegram yesterday afternoon from Rev. C. L. Collins, of Bowling Green, announcing that the official count in Meade county gives the "drys" a majority of one vote. It was announced through the papers that the election in that county, which was held last Saturday, had given a "wet" majority of five votes.

RECENT STORM

Very Destructive in the Sparrow Neighborhood.

OTHER NEWS FROM THAT NEIGHBORHOOD

On last Saturday a severe rain storm visited this section of the county. Branches, creeks and rivers were uncommonly high and considerable damage was done. Bridges, barns, smoke houses, fences, corn and tobacco being washed away and people forced to leave their homes in the territory along Salt river. On Heaven creek the damage amounted to several thousand dollars. We do not know of any lives lost during the high waters.

John D. Richardson died at his home near Sparrow, Ky., on Sept. 28th, 1906. He had been confined to his bed about fifteen days with pneumonia. The interment took place the following day in the family burying ground near the home of his father, P. C. Richardson. Deceased was about forty years of age, and a consistent member of the Baptist church. He was an excellent Christian gentleman, a good citizen, a splendid neighbor, a kind husband and a devoted father. He leaves a wife and three children, five brothers, two sisters and his aged father to mourn their loss, and who have our deepest sympathy in their bereavement. Dear friends do not weep and sorrow as those who have no hope, though he be dead, we know he shall live again.

Mr. George Thompson died at his home near Black Ky., on Sept. 29th, of dropsy of the heart. The interment took place the following day in Chaplin Fork cemetery. Deceased was over seventy years of age; a kind-hearted, Christian gentleman, a kind husband and a devoted father—in fact a model man in every respect. He was ready and willing to help the needy in any way he could. He will be greatly missed at home and in the community. We would say to his children and grandchildren remember father and try to follow in his footsteps. He is survived by a wife, five sons, four daughters and several grandchildren, who mourn their loss. We extend to them our heartfelt sympathy.

E. V. Martin sold a nice four-year-old gelding to Dr. A. M. Shields for $140.

OFFICE OF RAILROAD COMMISSIONER

A Most Important One...Logical Editorial From the Evening Post.

MR. DREWRY DIDN'T MEASURE UP RIGHT AND MR. WAKEFIELD IS BROUGHT FORWARD.

Evening Post: The contest for the control of the State Railroad Commission next year will not be second in interest to the control of the State ticket. The State is divided into three railroad districts. The First, or Western, district, is Democratic, and the commissioner is Mr. Ferguson. The Second, or Central, district, is Democratic, and is represented by Mr. McChord. The Third, or Eastern, district, is Republican, and the present member is Mr. Siler.

Recent decisions of the commission relate to two subjects. One is the through rate to and from Kentucky towns, which is made by adding the full local rates to the Ohio river rates.

The second relates to the local rates to Louisville from contiguous territory, confessedly 25 per cent. higher than rates from a like territory into Cincinnati. Another question pressing for solution relates to the passenger traffic. Twenty-five years ago the rates on the L. & N. system varied because of the fact that the system was made up of short and long roads, built under varying conditions. After considering the rates were made uniform over nearly the whole system, and reduced from 4, 4 1/2 and 5 to 3 cents, and the result, we believe, has been satisfactory.

The growth in business has been very great in the past twenty-five years, and there is a growing demand for a reduction. In the East, and on a large portion of the roads as far west as Chicago, the fare has been reduced to 2 1/2 cents, and mileage books sold for 1,000-mile tickets. In Ohio the Legislature has fixed the rate at 2 cents.

It is believed that the next Legislature will take up the matter, even if the commission should not act in the meantime.

Under the original charter the L. & N. was allowed to fix its rates, the maximum being named at 4 or 5 cents.

a mile. But it surrendered that right when it accepted the new constitution, and amended its charter in order to become with the Southern the joint purchaser of the Monon road, of which Mr. Morgan was very tired.

There are indications of irritation on the part of the railroad representatives interested in politics at recent rulings of the Railroad Commission, and political bosses seem disposed to take advantage of this feeling to supplant Ferguson and McChord. Drewry was first suggested as the best man to beat McChord, but the suggestion did not meet with much favor. Wakefield is now the favorite with the opposition, but another change may be made before the convention meets. Local candidates will appear with the flowers that bloom in the spring, with the hope of dividing McChord support. Ferguson will have opposition and Siler may also expect it. One commissioner could not reverse the attitude of the board, and the desire being to reduce it to "innocuous desuetude," it will be necessary for the political agents of the railroads to capture at least two out of the three districts.

Better counsel may prevail, and the railroads may determine not to try conclusions with the commissioners before the people, but leave their cause with the court. Furthermore, it must be clear that lower rates for freight and passenger traffic are to come. The abolition of rates and of passes makes this possible without loss to the roads, and make it inevitable. Railroads are not to be "regulated" solely for the benefit of the roads. In resisting reductions, the railroads are merely fighting for time. It costs less to make the fight in the courts than it does to make it in politics. Indeed, it costs less not to fight a reasonable readjustment at all, though that is not the view one expects the railroads to take—yet.

High School News.

Pupils Engage In Another Interesting Debate.

No Foot-Ball This Season.

Another memorable debate was held by the Literary and Debating Society last Friday. The program for the afternoon was varied. After recitations, of which may be mentioned for excellence of delivery those of Leo Simms and Lyman Barber, the piano was brought in and Miss Louise Medley sang the "Dream." Afterward, "When the Bells are in the Hives" was sung by a quartette consisting of Prof. Colvin, Harry Shultz, Miss Mary Haydon and Miss Isa Colvin. These two numbers were especially enjoyed, as music is a new feature to our entertainments. Hereafter there will be a musical program at every meeting. But, as was well expressed by one of our incipient orators in describing the events of the afternoon, and coming nearer to the sayings of the Bard of Avon than he knew "The Debate's the Thing." In one respect the debaters were handicapped. Not one of them had been in a debate before. The question, too, was one that might well puzzle the brains of older and wiser heads than theirs. It was "Resolved that Herodotus has more to do in shaping our lives and characters than Education."

Especially good speeches were made by Walter Clements and Knight Handy on the affirmative and by Walter Royalty and L. D. Walker on the negative. They were ably assisted by Misses Bennie Waters, Nancy Tonge, Nellie Noe, and Mr. Minton Cregor on the affirmative, and by Misses Ida McClure, Hattie Webb, Mabel Price, and Messrs. John Claybrooke and Finley Scruggs on the negative. The feature of the evening was Minton Cregor's dissertation on the subject of negro honesty. He declares that the whole race were thieves and liars and substantiated his argument by saying that he would not soon forget the time he loaned one of the best of the race a quarter for he was still awaiting the payment of it. This, it was argued, came from Merton, the negro of the opposite side, who stated that it came from environment, as the negro lived close to the Cagor home. This last opinion did not seem to have much support, however.

Owing to the late hour of dismissal this year, it will be impossible to do anything with football this year. This is a sincere disappointment to many of the students, as there is much good material for a team in the new members of the school.

The students of the sixth grade will give a debate Friday afternoon on the relative greatness as statesmen of Clay and Webster. The young people have been working hard in preparation for it and a good effort may well be expected of all of them.

The students are taking great interest in the lecture course that is being planned by the management for the year. Especially the students who take part in the debates will find inspiration in the excellent corps of orators that has been procured.

Sudden Death.

Lebanon Enterprise: Mr. Joseph Riley, age 75, dropped dead at the Brinton Hotel, this city, yesterday at noon. He had just begun to eat his dinner and had taken but a few mouthfuls, when his head dropped in front of him and he ceased to eat. Several men eating at the same table noticed that something was wrong, and went to his assistance. Before they could remove him, however, he had breathed his last.

LECTURE COURSE

For Springfield This Fall and Winter.

FAMOUS MEN WILL BE HERE.

Chas. A. Towne Will Appear the Latter Part of the Month.

We are glad to announce to the people of Springfield and Washington county that they are to have the opportunity of hearing the very best platform talent of the country in the lecture course to be given at the Opera House through the coming winter. The management has secured the following program: the Hon. Chas. A. Towne, of New York, Homer T. Wilson, C. M. O'Neal and the Smith Music Company. Towne is recognized as one of the most finished orators in America, ranking along with Bryan, Beveridge and LaFollette. He has been in public life, serving as Congressman and Senator from Minnesota, as Congressman from New York and making the race as vice-president with Bryan in the '96 campaign and he is now most prominently mentioned as Bryan's running mate for 1908. While his lecture will not be political in the sense that he will deal with modern political parties, it will be along the line of discussion of the important principles and questions now confronting the people. We feel safe in saying that no one ever spoke in Springfield who deserved or will receive a bigger or better audience. Wilson is known already to our people, having been heard here twice by large and enthusiastic crowds. O'Neal comes recommended as the peer of any platform orator and his lecture on "Popular Fallacies" has been favorably received by the best audiences in all the cities in the country. The Smith Music Company affords a rare chance to those who love music of hearing in one evening the best vocal and instrumental selections given by any company.

Each number is high-classed and costs regularly $1.00 and 75 cents for seats. By securing season tickets, patrons can hear all these "Stars" for $2. The advance sale of seats indicates the best attendance ever given a lecture course in our town and proves that fathers and mothers are appreciative of the fact that these entertainments are instructive and inspiring to their boys and girls and that they are encouraging them to attend these rather than cheap shows of questionable influence. The first lecture will be delivered here the latter part of October. Season tickets are now on sale at the Red Cross Drug Store.

CUTTING AFFRAY

At Mooreville Saturday Night A Serious Affair.

At Mooreville last Saturday night a difficulty arose between Clem Cutsinger and some parties who were in the neighborhood chivaring a newly-married couple. Palmer Cheatham, in attempting to separate the combatants received quite a severe cut upon the throat, the cutting having been done, it is alleged, by Clem Cutsinger. The wound was a ghastly one, and at first it was thought to be very serious. Dr. Shehan, of Maud, was hastily summoned, and the wound was dressed. It required seven stitches to close the cut. The wounded man is now thought to be out of danger.

TOO MUCH TOBACCO BEING RAISED

Says Our Long Run Correspondent.—Corn Crop Damaged By the Heavy Rains.—Four Cases of Typhoid Fever at Long Run in Sixty Years.

On the 28th of last month Bro. John Key left for Berry, Harrison county, Ky., to assist Rev. E. K. Pike, Methodist, in a ten days' meeting.

There has been but four cases of typhoid fever in Long Run since the summer of 1853.

The hickory nut crop is very heavy. The limbs are fairly bending with the precious nuts in the woods where the crop is usually light. The ground is strewn with hulls that the squirrels have dropped, and the little fellows are having a fine time.

We believe the corn crop this season is the heaviest we ever saw. It shows what Washington county is capable of under favorable circumstances. We have not seen a poor corn or tobacco field.

The farmers of our community are getting discouraged over their tobacco crop. It has been a hard year to cultivate and handle the weed. I heard of one man who hauled out nearly five thousand sticks and another four thousand. A very indifferent crop of tobacco must necessarily go on the market this season. We believe too much tobacco is cultivated. It is our greatest crop; almost everything else is being neglected. Timber is cut away that more tobacco may be raised; weeds and bushes are growing up over the farms, new fences need to be built and old ones repaired and outbuildings looked after. We have not even time to work our county roads. Boys are kept out of school, and even church attendance (one of our greatest privileges) is falling off, all because we are raising too much tobacco. The sacrifice is too great, it costs too much, and we cannot afford it. There are other things that need to be attended to, and other crops of more importance.

Marion County.

Falcon: Mr. Nathan Sapp died from the infirmities of old age Monday at his home near New Market, and the interment was held in the cemetery at that place Tuesday. Mr. Sapp was 84 years old and is survived by two children, his wife having preceded him to the grave several years ago.

The Farmers' Institute that was to have been held here Friday and Saturday, was at the last moment, postponed indefinitely on account of the horse sale and the circus here on those days. Mr. Vreeland said the meeting was too important to have anything detract the interest of the farmers from it, and that he would announce a later date as soon as proper arrangements could be made.

Mrs. Ben J. Luckett happened to a serious accident at her home near Calvary Monday. She slipped and fell in the yard, breaking her arm in two places, her collar bone and two ribs. While her injuries are painful they are not considered of a dangerous nature.

Miss Mattie Farmer, daughter of Mr. James Farmer of the New Market neighborhood, died Sunday after a week's illness of typhoid fever.

WILLISBURG.

We have had so much rain in this vicinity that it has ruined a great deal of the tobacco crop and corn is rotting on the stalk.

The contractors on our bank building are getting along slowly on account of the rainy weather. They think they will be able to get the foundation laid this week.

Mr. Smith, of Owen county, our cashier, was here last week looking after the interest of the building.

L. W. Jenkins and family left last Thursday for Mooreville, Ind., to make their future home. We regret to lose Mr. Jenkins, as he was a good citizen and has many friends at this place who wish him and his family well in their undertaking.

Keep Your Nerve

It is nerve energy that runs the organs of your body. The storage battery is the nerve cells in the brain and spinal cord, and from this battery nerve force is sent out through the system of nerves. To keep the body healthy you must have plenty of nerve force; if you have not, the organs work imperfectly, the circulation is sluggish, digestion bad, appetite poor, kidneys inactive, aches, pains and misery are the penalty.

You can keep the system strong with Dr. Miles' Nerve.

It assists in generating nerve energy; it strengthens the nerves and makes the whole system strong and vigorous.

"I take pleasure in recommending Dr. Miles' Nerve to anyone suffering from nervous prostration, insomnia and melancholy. After several months' suffering from above diseases I tried this medicine, and it brought me relief. It restores and strengthens the nerves, dispels the gloomy and depressing thoughts and infuses new vigor, strength and hope. It is a superb nerve stimulator."

RELATIVE OF THE LATE GOV. GOEBEL PASSES AWAY AT HER HOME IN CINCINNATI.

Cincinnati—Mrs. Annie Goebel, at whose knee played the late Gov. Goebel in his boyhood, died at the home of her lifelong friend, Mrs. Rosa Goebel, at 1137 Eastern avenue. She was born in 1823, and was the second wife of the grandfather of the late statesman, Arthur and Justus, and she was extremely fond of the three boys, whose subsequent notable careers in politics and business she watched with pride and pleasure.

When her hair silvered and her vitality was sapped by the encroachment of old age her every wish was met and supplied by the Goebel brothers. The late governor, however, was her favorite, and she fairly idolized the man. When he fell under an assassin's bullet the anguish was taken from her life. After his death she was a changed woman. At the time of her death she was the second oldest member of St. Paul's German church, at Eleventh and Banklick streets, Covington, and the funeral took place from that church.

The cause of the wreck is not clear. R. L. Utterback, conductor of the mail train, said that the freight train was standing on the main line over which the passenger had the right of way at the time when they struck it. The engine of the passenger train plowed through the caboose and three cars at the rear of the freight, smashing them into kindling wood. The seriously injured are: Fred J. A DETERMINED FIGHTER.

Just at this time it is very important to send to Congress men of influence—men who will stand for the interests of the farmer. The bitterest fight ever waged in the halls of the National Congress will be fought to a conclusion during the next year. It will be a fight between the mammoth trusts of the country and the people—the plain, common people. We must elect as our Representatives men who have the courage, the flint in them, the determination to override all obstacles; men who will wave the people's banner fairly in the faces of the corrupt hosts, who occupy seats in Congress for the sole purpose of bringing about class legislation. Every man who knows Mr. Johnson, the Democratic nominee, knows him as a determined fighter, as a man who will battle unrelentingly for those laws which will prove blessings to the people. Even at this stage of the game tobacco legislation has been mapped out, and the great tobacco trust will oppose it with its millions—ill-gotten millions of money. But if we can succeed in electing to Congress such men as Mr. Johnson, the all-powerful tobacco trust will become as helpless as a bubble in a gale. Its efforts in behalf of class legislation will amount to naught, and the tobacco farmers, through their representatives in Congress, will succeed in getting legislation which will guarantee to them fair prices for their crops, and which will be the means of saving to the farmers thousands of dollars annually.

At Hodgenville a few days ago it was the pleasure of the editor of The Sun to hear Mr. Johnson deliver a speech. During his remarks he referred to the nefarious work of the tobacco trust and offered some suggestions as to the best method of treating it from a legislative standpoint. In no uncertain language he pledged himself to battle to the last ditch against this, the most powerful perhaps, of all the trust. And those people who know him personally know he will do just what he says he will do.

Indeed, we wish it were possible for every voter in the district to know Mr. Johnson as we know him. If this could be, emphatically there would be few votes against him.

The railroads and the politicians, who, it is said will try to defeat Hon. C. C. McChord for the Democratic nomination for Railroad Commissioner, have not felt the public pulse. It's a McChord pulse, and its beating in a manner that indicates strength.

COMMISSIONER McCHORD AND THE RAILROADS.

An attempt is to be made to defeat Hon. C. C. McChord for the Democratic nomination for Railroad Commissioner. Mr. McChord has committed the unpardonable sin of making the railroads comply with the laws of Kentucky. He has been active during his terms of office in an endeavor to compel the railroad companies to give to the shippers of the State just and equitable freight rates, and he has been very successful in accomplishing this purpose. There are thousands of people in Kentucky to-day applauding Charlie McChord because of his determined stand in this matter of adjusting freight rates.

BEHIND THE MOVEMENT TO DEFEAT MR. McCHORD ARE THE RAILROADS OF KENTUCKY. Unquestionably they are behind it.

The railroads are powerful, but they will find that they are to combat a POWER—the people—a great determined mass of people, who will demand simple justice and honesty.

There is not a more important office than that of Railroad Commissioner; especially is this true just at this time, and it behooves the voters to see to it that good and honest Commissioners are elected. Mr. McChord has been tried; certainly he has not been found wanting, even those who at this hour are scheming to bring about his defeat can find NOT ONE WORD against him with which to go before the voters. His record is clean, his duties have been well done, and he goes before the people with a long record, not one iota of which can be attacked. In other words Mr. McChord, by his remarkably clean record as Commissioner, disarms the opposition, and sends it out to fight its "cause" without even a campaign slogan.

The Evening Post and Louisville Herald make the charge that Louisville politicians have made a deal with certain candidates for State office, and that the vote of Louisville is to be given to these candidates in the coming State primary, in consideration of which the said candidates are to deliver to the Louisville politicians a sufficient number of delegate votes from the various counties in this district, to defeat Mr. McChord and nominate a candidate to be selected by the Louisville coterie.

The charge of the Post and Herald may be true. It may not be true. We can not bring the charge, because we have not the proof to sustain it. But absolute and conclusive evidence can be brought that the railroads of Kentucky will attempt to remove Mr. McChord from the Railroad Commission. Not because he deals unjustly with the railroads, but because he deals justly with the people. That's the grievance! The railroad companies, we presume, want a Commissioner who will deal unjustly with the shippers of the State. If not, why this attempt to defeat Mr. McChord?

This is the scheme: A CANDIDATE WILL BE SELECTED IN LOUISVILLE. (He will be the king bee.) FROM OTHER COUNTIES IN THE DISTRICT CANDIDATES WILL BOB UP. When the district convention is held these candidates will attempt to control their delegate votes for the railroads' candidate.

That's the program.

And The Sun warns the people that the most determined effort ever put forth by corporate power in Kentucky to defeat a servant of the masses will be that which the railroads will put forth to defeat C. C. McChord.

But the failure of their schemes and the overwhelming election of Mr. McChord is already apparent.

Just at this time the people are watchful! They are demanding that trusted servants be elected to important offices, and it will be hard to convince the intelligent voter that Mr. McChord should be defeated.

The people will refuse to have the wool pulled over their eyes by a "many-sided cat." The scheme is old; the same tactics have been employed to defeat McChord in each of his other elections, but his victories have been emphatic.

Fall millinery, elections and frosts are about due. Bird feathers, floaters and falling leaves will be conspicuous. But, praise goodness, we have lived through it all in years past.

THE CASE OF SENATOR PLATT.

Senator Platt, who for many years was the recognized boss of the Republican party of New York, who lashed thousands into line with each whirl of his great political whip, has met his Waterloo; he has flunked, flickered, flinched, thrown up the sponge and cried out from the depths of his tortured soul for mercy. A WOMAN—a little flesh and a little bone moulded by the Allwise into the form of a woman—seined the life of the famous New Yorker, captured the whales and left nothing in the soul's Great Lake but water-dogs and devil-fishes. And Tom Platt lies prostrate at the feet of a woman! His nerve, like tints of frost under autumn suns, has gone a-glimmering, and when she frowns his will-power becomes as pliable as fuzz before a keen blade. Laws—how the impenetrable is penetrated by these little darts from Cupid's bow! He, who with an indomitable will and a courage which approached very close to the tyrannical, swayed thousands and made them knuckle to him like backboneless things, trembles before a woman and a poodle pup, allows himself to be trapped and his affections trafficked by a creature in whose cranium could not be found enough grey-matter to grease the tail-feathers of a gnat. And United Senator Tom Platt hath fallen, and the fall is mighty! He, the lion-hearted, becomes lamb-hearted! And a giant intellect becomes as a child's. But let us hope that the old war-horse of the Empire State will again assert himself. Let us hope that he will tonic his nerves, tear-asunder the shackles around his WILL, spit long-green tobacco juice in the eyes of the poodle pup, fling it through the window, pull his wife's nose, sponge the paint off her cheeks, then make a dive for Associated Press headquarters and have this telegram flashed over the wires to the reading world: "Tom Platt has regained his nerve, killed a poodle pup, CONQUERED things, and comes forth again as a strong MAN!"

But it may be harder to do than we calculate!

The LaRue County Herald says: "The voters of LaRue County should feel it to be a pleasant duty to do all they can to bring out the vote for Mr. Johnson for Congress. He is a capable man and a most estimable citizen in every sense of the word. Plain and outspoken, you can read him; there is nothing hidden, nothing to be inferred. He will make one of the ablest representatives our district has ever had. He wants a big majority and the voters should respond to that ambition by giving him their support, and by bringing to the polls every available vote."

Last week we received a letter from a friend—an ardent Beckham supporter—in which we were rebuked for our "hostility" toward the Governor, in an editorial the previous week. This week we have received a letter from another friend, who is an ardent supporter of Senator McCreary, in which we are raked over the coals for what he claims is an anti-McCreary attitude. In the same editorial in which our friend of last week found anti-Beckham thunder, our friend of this week finds anti-McCreary thunder. Now, this is what we call a 'nuff case of ketchin' it a 'comin' an 'a-gwine.

Little interest is being manifested by Washington county voters in the coming election. In other words the pot ain't a 'bilin' like we've seen it b'ile in other days, but it's very probable that the flames will leap higher, the coals will burn brighter and the pot will get a move on itself before the performance ceases and the curtain drops on November 6.

BRETHREN, BEHAVE YOURSELVES.

The Kentucky State Journal and the Danville News are "wrought up," each against the other. Pison, p'inted, pithforkery vocabularies have been jerked out of the darkest recesses of N. Webster's compilation of bitterness and flung bac-an'-fo'th between Frankfort and Danville in a manner that would cause the gods of battle to flicker, and skeedaddle to the ramparts. Brethren, brethren, behave yourselves. But if you won't, let us beseech, let us pray, that each one will consider his pen mightier than his sword.

Hon. Ben Johnson, of Bardstown, Democratic nominee for Congress from the Fourth district, is a man for whom any voter of any political party can vote with almost the positive assurance that he will never regret having cast such a vote.

We rise to predict, forecast or prognosticate that the State primary to be held on Tuesday, November 6, next, will be the beginning of the end of the State primary in Kentucky. They are too costly, too much trouble, too hard to get into, and too hard to get out of in an "unbusted" condition.

When Mr. Johnson takes his seat in Congress he may be depended upon to work for and vote for only those measures which he honestly believes will result in the greatest good to the greatest number of people.

The honesty, conservatism, the outspoken and open manner in which Hon. Ben Johnson deals with measures and men have won for him the loyal support of many voters in the district who disagree with him along some lines.

Nothing to Fear.

The question of injurious substances in medicines which has been agitating the minds of many people, does not concern those who use Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Mothers need have no hesitancy in continuing to give it to their little ones, as it contains absolutely nothing injurious. This remedy is not only perfectly safe to give small children, but it is a medicine of great worth and merit. It has a world wide reputation for its cures of coughs, colds and croup, and can always be relied upon. For only by every reliable dealer in the Blue Grass.

Mysterious Disappearance.

Harrodsburg Herald: C. M. Ballard, an applicant for postmaster of Danville, left his home at Faulconer five months ago and nothing has been heard of him since. He was working for N. I. Buster, the well known farmer and stockman, whose farm lies partly in this and Boyle counties. One day Mrs. Buster remarked that some of her turkeys were missing. The fowls had often strayed away before. Ballard said that he would take a look for them after dinner and he started out in his shirt sleeves, leaving his coat at the residence. The turkeys came home that night or the next morning, but nothing has since been heard of Ballard. His belongings are still where he left them five months ago and his coat still remains at the Buster home. Ballard spent considerable time in agitating the question of calling on Congress to enact laws more favorable to the tobacco raisers and less favorable to the tobacco trust. He was a staunch Republican and last winter rode through the county seeking signatures to a petition requesting President Roosevelt to appoint him postmaster of Danville. He got his signatures out in the county but made no special efforts to secure signatures in the city. After a petition of some length had been obtained he forwarded it to Washington. The President turned down his application and as a result some say he sought a home in Canada or under some other flag than the stars and stripes. A report has also been current to the effect that his mind had been effected for several months previous to his disappearance, and it is said that he had once been an inmate of the Lexington Insane Asylum. Some of his friends believe that he committed suicide in some out-of-the-way place, but the prevailing impression is that he lost confidence in himself and the United States when he was refused the postmastership by the President. Ballard announced for assessor of Boyle county four years ago on the Republican ticket, but withdrew. He formerly lived in Harrodsburg and worked in a tobacco warehouse and was an expert in his line.

WILL SHOW HERE

Saturday Night, October 13.

Rarely in the history of the Grand Opera House has that building contained such a large audience as it held last evening—packed and jammed to the doors. Such was the condition of things that when the curtain rose on the first act of the famous Brothers Royer in their new acrobatic farce "Next Door."

The piece, contrary to usual farce comedies, contains an interesting plot which runs through the entire three acts, which abounds in novelties of the most startling order. It is within bounds to say that no large spectacular and acrobatic event shown here has given the satisfaction that "Next Door" has—not one little moment in the play. You wonder how so much can be done in so little time. The sum of the entire production, we say that "Next Door" is a great big success—company's, wardrobe and scenery excellent, and certainly deserves the mammoth business done here. Pottsville Daily Ledger, September, 13, 1901.

INDIAN DIES AND RETURNS TO LIFE

RED MAN TELLS OF SEEING HEAVEN AND HELL.

HE NOW HAS A MISSION

Cherokee Fullbloods in Awe of Tribesman They Came Near Burying—Knows Position of Races in Next World.

Muskogee, I. T.—Claiming to have arisen from the dead, and his story credited by a large number of the full-blooded Indian population, near his place of residence, not far from Tallahassee, Tooley Catron, a Cherokee Indian of 21 or 25 years, is just now the center of more attention than is usually accorded one who has never been known beyond the narrow confines of his neighborhood.

Not many days ago young Catron was returning from Tallahassee, a distance of about ten miles from his home. Traveling on foot, he came to the Illinois river, and he proceeded to wade across and had just reached the opposite shore when, without an instant's premonition of illness, he suddenly fell unconscious on the gravel bar. There he remained for some time, when he was found by a passer-by, who, supposing him to be dead, carried him to his hut in the forest near Barren Fork creek.

There Catron was laid upon his bed and efforts were made to restore him to consciousness, but to no avail, and he was given up for dead.

All the next day he lay stark and cold and it was decided to bury him on the following day. Consequently, preparations for performing the last offices were begun, but, after all the internment was not to be, for before the sun had arisen on the day set for the funeral obsequies Catron began to show signs of returning animation, and by the time the shabazens were dissipating the mists in the Barren Fork valley the supposedly dead man was very much alive and ready to partake of food and drink and in a few days, as strong as usual, was to be seen about his usual haunts.

But while he was well physically as ever, the processes of Catron's mind were diverted into other channels. Whereas he had previous to his unconscious state entered into the commonplace conversation of his companions with readiness, he now assumed a more dignified carriage.

All of this was in itself surprising to his neighbors, already mystified by his return from what was supposed by them to be death, but their surprise was even greater when Catron informed them that he had really been dead, had seen both heaven and hell and the position to be occupied in the unseen world by the red, white and black races.

His future on earth, he indicated, would be different from what it had been in the past. In conversation with an old acquaintance, Catron informed him that he (Catron) was like the Lord in that he, too, had been dead and had arisen. Claiming at first to be a man of business, Catron purchased a suit-case and, going to Wellington, boarded a train, saying that he intended going to Washington for the purpose of consulting the president on public questions of importance. However, he did not make an extended journey, but was back home in a few days, making preparations for preaching, and addressed a large crowd of fullbloods in the mountain regions, far down the Illinois river.

Catron is a slender, dark man of ordinary appearance and one of the last that would be supposed to have a "mission" to perform, but his having so strangely fallen into what was apparently the state of death and having returned will, no doubt, cause him to be regarded with a peculiar veneration and awe by large bands of his people.

LYNCHED AN INNOCENT NEGRO.

A MOB AVENGED THE KILLING OF A WHITE MAN.

And Wounding of His Son in Arkansas By Stringing Up a Negro and Ridding Body With Bullets.

Argenta, Ark., Oct. 8.—As a sequel to the killing of John Lindsay and the wounding of his son, Policeman Milton Lindsay, here Saturday night, presumably by Garrett Colum and Chas. Colun, negroes, H. Blackburn, a negro, innocent, was lynched at the corner of Sixth and Main streets.

The lynching is the latest link in a chain of clashes between whites and blacks which started on September 2, when a white man named R. R. McDonald killed a negro musician named Wiley Shelby.

Next day, at the inquest held at Colum's undertaking store, a difficulty arose in which Robert Colum was killed and Deputy Constable Ed Lindsay and Garrett Colum severely wounded, the latter emerging from the hospital only Saturday. Policeman Milton Lindsay, a brother of Ed Lindsay, was also hurt at that time.

Saturday night Policeman Milton Lindsay and his father were walking past the Colum store when they were fired on from ambush. John Lindsay was killed on the spot. His son was severely wounded, but managed to crawl out of range.

When the police and citizens attempted to enter the store they were fired on. It is supposed Charles and Garrett Colum did the shooting. Later in the night, thinking the Colum brothers were still locked in the rear rooms of the store, the place was dynamited so the negroes had escaped unseen in the darkness in the early part of the trouble.

At 1:30 o'clock in the morning Will Harding, a painter, was halted on the street by unknown parties, whether black or white he could not tell.

Shot in the Back.

He was asked if he was black or white. On replying that he was white he was told to go back, and while leaving he was shot in the back. At 2 o'clock James Mahoney, a constable, and A. L. Belding, a reporter of the Little Rock Gazette, while going to see Harding, were fired on from four different quarters with shotguns. Mahoney was painfully shot in the hand. Belding's clothes were peppered with buckshot, but none entered his body.

At noon Sunday H. Blackburn, 37, a negro, who conducts a confectionery store in Argenta, was arrested on suspicion of being the man who fired on Mahoney and Belding.

The town was quiet all day, but as a precaution Mayor Faucett and Sheriff Kavanaugh swore in 15 extra police men, and the sheriff sent several extra deputies to assist the police.

The lynching of Blackburn was quietly put through in a business-like way. Shortly before 10 o'clock four masked men entered the police station from the rear, and one covered the turnkey with a pistol while the others got his keys, quickly unlocked Blackburn's cell and took him out the back way.

Not a shot was fired, and there was no loud talk, so that four police officers on the street a few blocks away knew nothing of what was going on until they heard several shots fired at Main and Sixth street. Running there, they found Blackburn already dead, hung to a telegraph pole, while the crowd were apparently merely onlookers.

LANDING OF AMERICAN TROOPS Was Accomplished With Marvellous Dispatch at Havana.

Havana, Oct. 8.—The first landing of American soldiers in the present occupation of Cuba was accomplished Sunday with marvellous promptness and 500 men of the Fifth United States Infantry and 500 men of the Second battalion of engineers are settled under canvas in Camp Columbia. The cruiser Brooklyn arrived with 400 men on board, and will be sent to camp.

Gen. Funston established his headquarters at Mariano, convenient to his command. Col. Waller, commanding the marines, has been ordered to report to Gen. Funston, and the entire force of regulars and marines will be under Funston's command until the arrival of Gen. Bell, who will direct the distribution of the forces throughout the island. Within an hour from the time that the transport Sumner came alongside the railroad wharf, the disembarking had been completed and 850 men landed.

AT THE PACK-MULE CLAIM

By PHILIP VERRILL MICHOLS

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Nichols.)

Four men, bound hand and foot, were standing beneath a tress of the railway bridge, and above their heads four ropes, came dangling down, each with a noose at the end. A grimy stout throng of cowboys and miners hedged them in.

One of the four, whose appeals and protests were of no avail, appeared to be the merest youth. He quaked with terror as the noose was deftly slipped about his neck.

"Oh, let me go—let me go!" he sobbed.

The man addressed and all the men who had a grip on the end of the rope, ready to pull at the signal, gaped with open mouths.

"Girl!" said Joe Merrill, the leader. "What are you doing here? How do you come with this gang of thieves?" He took off her hat, and saw that her short, curly hair was black as velvet.

The girl continued to cry convulsively. Merrill dropped her hat from nerveless fingers. His face became as gray as dust. "Slack up on the ropes!" he commanded hoarsely. "March them down to Pizen; they can tell their story there."

Falling behind the mob, which was moving away like a many-jointed creature, Merrill saw an opportunity to pause in a shadow and let them all proceed without him.

"She has come to hunt me up," he muttered. "But—I'm ashamed to let her know me—now."

The crowd of men with the captives had scattered when Merrill came to Pizen Spring, the town on the edge of the mines in the mountains and the cattle ranges in the valley.

The three men had been able to prove themselves minors and entirely innocent of the crime for which they came so near losing their lives.

The girl, who had fallen in with the miners by chance, had come to Pizen in search of her brother. Her name was Maggie Drew. Her stepfather, she said, had been dead a year; her mother was ill; the work of the ranch had devolved upon herself. She had heard that Bronson Drew, her brother, was in Nicoll Valley, and now that the step-parent was alive no longer, she had hoped that if she could find him he would willingly go back to the place. She had come in the dress of a boy because of its convenience and its suitability for her purpose. She had never seen nor heard from this brother during more than seven years of his absence.

As Merrill started to walk to his cabin that evening a man stepped out in the path before him.

"Evening!" he said, and made to pass.

"Evening, Bronson Drew!" replied the man.

He turned sharply. "Who told you that? Who are you?" he demanded. The voice sounded half familiar, but he could not recognize the bearded face in the shadow.

"Don't say a word," replied the stranger. "Come here a little and I'll tell you something about your sister. It's something you'll be glad to know."

There was ample acknowledgment of the name of Drew and his kinship with the girl in Merrill's silent complicity with the man's request.

He was on the alert for any suspicious movement, but he was entirely unprepared for a ruffian who glided behind him at the corner and dealt him a blow on the back of the head with a clubbed revolver. He sank without a sound to the earth.

When he regained his senses, Drew found himself lying on the dusty floor of a cabin. Dawn had broken, but the place was dark. He failed to recognize anything familiar, even as the light increased. A dull pain was throbbing at the base of his brain.

At length the door was opened; the man who had brought him to the place came quietly in.

"Good-morning, Bronson," said the man, as he noted the two brilliant eyes regarding his face. "Didn't know me, did you, when we met last night?"

Everything came back to the wound, but they came back in the wrong order. He knew his father's name, his stepfather's son, Charlie Marshall, the creature who had broken up the home. He could make no reply, gagged and powerless as he was.

"Don't be a cur; speak up to your brother," taunted Marshall, grinning with delight. "Can't you get up and break my jaw, like you did before? No? Now that's a pity."

The man who was bound could see behind the scarred and bearded face, and he discovered again the malicious countenance of the boy he had met when his mother married Caleb Marshall and himself; again he recalled the intrusion of this human brute; again he fought the fight in which he nearly killed the fellow for an unbearable insult to Maggie.

As for Marshall, he had a plan conceived in his ingenious brain. He meant to possess the Drew ranch house. His father was dead; Mrs. Drew-Marshall was ill; Bronson Drew was in his power, and Maggie—he was planning concerning the girl.

At the late afternoon he composed a note to Maggie Drew, urging that she come at once to render aid. This he signed with the name of his prisoner; and certain old-time pet names which he had heard frequently pronounced he employed to give his note a genuine flavor.

Then he walked rapidly up the ravine to a spring, where his horse was concealed in the willows, and rode away to the north.

Bronson Drew, half choked, cut by the ropes about his arms, famishing for water, was keenly alive to suffering.

Now an odor stole to his senses; it was faint and feeble. Before he could catch it the air had diluted its essence. It came again—smoke! Something was burning!

Suddenly a slender flame went licking upward in a corner.

Drew was numbed with horror. To be roasted alive—this was to be his fate! He worked and wrenched at his fastenings madly.

By this time the whole interior was lurid with the leap of the flames.

A last gave way. The rope was as good as broken. With a great contention Drew squirmed himself free. He rolled over, got on his knees, and jumped, with his feet tied together and his hands behind his back through the door.

Five minutes later, the blaze had the whole structure wrapped about in sinuous tentacles of red and yellow. The glow lighted the sides of the canon far.

It was dark and early, the second morning after Maggie Drew's narrow escape, when a silent figure glided from the brush to the stable where "Merrill" kept his horse. He led the animal forth, saddled him hurriedly, and then proceeded to make him wet at a watering trough and to run him foam with soap. Next he took a piece of folded paper from his pocket and tied it to the stirrup.

Leading the horse across the road beneath the windows of the Russell house, where Maggie Drew was staying, the inhuman being cut a tendon near the hoof in the right foreleg of the horse, and thereby rendered him helpless. The agonized creature gave a shrill cry of pain.

Evidently satisfied, the man-form glided again to the brush and disappeared. At the second neigh of the helpless horse a window went up and Maggie Drew was looking forth. The pitiful horse-cry continued. Presently came a noise of shutting doors, and then the faces of the two Russell girls were also at the window.

"I know that horse is in pain," said the voice of Maggie. She soon came running out, half-clad and wrapped in a shawl. Her quick eyes rapidly took in the situation. She knew the horse could barely hobble, she thought he had come on a terrible case. Then she found the paper at the stirrup.

One of the chattering girls brought a light and read the note which Charlie Marshall had written at the Pack-Mule Mine.

Maggie made no sound when the end was reached.

She put on her boy's clothes as if by instinct. When the note in her shirt she ran to the shed.

She saddled an astonished broncho and like a spirit of the wind he shot away at the top of his speed.

The miles of sandy country seemed to slide to the rear beneath the broncho's hoofs. He raged up the Freetown canon, going like an engine.

A cry came floating down the gulch; then a series of yelps. She knew the voice of the timber wolf, when three or more are banded together, and the sound gave her a thrill of dread.

Almost immediately she raced about a curve, and felt that the wolves were near at hand. The light had increased. In a second she saw the animals, standing at bay before a man, who was bound hand and foot.

"Hi!" cried Maggie, instinctively, forgetting herself for the second.

"Maggie!" shouted the man, who had rubbed off the gag on the rocks.

That second Maggie slipped to the ground, fell headlong, regained her feet and went running back along the trail.

She panted; her hat was gone; her knife was clutched wildly in her hand.

"Hi! Hi!" cried the girl again. The cowardly beasts ran a rod and stood to gather courage. Her knife slipped quickly across the ropes—her brother was free—to defend, to protect, to fight.

"Bronny!" she cried, and fainted in his arms.

Marshall, the hunted, rode like a fiend that night, to escape his pursuers, but they caught him in the Pack-Mule ravine and strung him up to the nearest tree.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera & Diarrhea Remedy

Almost every family has need of a reliable remedy for colic or diarrhea at some time during the year.

This remedy is recommended by dealers who have sold it for many years and know its value.

It has received thousands of testimonials from grateful people. It has been prescribed by physicians with the most satisfactory results.

It has often saved life before medicine could have been sent for or a physician summoned.

It only costs a quarter. Can you afford to risk so much for so little? BUY IT NOW.

When you want to do any white washing this fall remember the following formula: One-half bushel of lime slaked in boiling water and strained through moderately fine sieve to remove sediment. Add two pounds of sulphate of zinc, one pound of common salt and one quart of whiting, thoroughly dissolved. Mix to proper consistency with skimmed milk, if possible, if not, with hot water. In thoroughly one-half pint of liquid glue and apply the wash while it is hot. If color is desired, yellow ochre, ultramarine blue, lamp black, etc., may be used.

A good method of handling and rearing a calf is to take it from the cow after the third or fourth day and to teach it to drink from a pail. This can be easily done by putting the finger in its mouth and gradually lowering the hand until it is beneath the warm milk in the pail. Once or twice trying and it will drink by itself. The pure milk should be fed for a week or so, when it can be fed on skimmed milk, to which it will be well to add a little meal or shipstuf, especially if the calf does not run on pasture. After a month or two it should be fed good timothy or clover hay.

Cornmeal mush for breakfast: Put two quarts of water to boil, add to it a teaspoonful of salt. When white mix yellow cornmeal to a good, smooth paste in cold water; then put this into the boiling water and it won't get into lumps. Stir in now until the whole becomes thick enough to hold the spoon upright. While doing this let the fire be only sufficient to let it bubble softly. It ought to cook an hour, turn it out into square bread pans three or four inches deep, and in the morning, if to be fried for breakfast, cut in slices as thick, dip into four to bind it, then fry in lard and butter mixed, turning until a golden color.

Here is another story, told by the Detroit (Mich.) News, which shows how invaluable the telephone has come to be on the farm. The team of a farmer near Sheboygan sank in a mire on the farm and the horses were slowly going under when he thought of his telephone. Soon he had a gang of a dozen phone wire stretchers, with implements, on a race for the farm. Their arrival was timely, the breathing apparatus of the animals being still above ground. By using the stretching machinery the horses were dragged from the bog. The rural telephone is itself a great thing for the farmer, but this being provided with a troop of stout-bodied men for emergencies, all for the low price of the phone, is worth taking into the equation.

After careful chemical analysis for the purpose of determining the value of barnyard manure on soils, Prof. Harry Snyder reports the following: If applied to a worn-out soil at the rate of eight tons per acre, the increase in corn the first year will be 20 to 25 bushels per acre. This would be worth $7. The next year the land will produce six bushels more of wheat, worth, say, $4.50. If seeded to clover it would yield at least a ton more of hay, worth $5. Following the clover with wheat again, a gain of eight bushels per acre, worth $6, will follow. Then will come 12 to 15 bushels more of oats, worth $2. The increase in the five crops, due to the dressing of eight tons of farm manure and the production of clover, is alone worth $25, making the value of the manure $3 per ton distributed over five acres, equivalent to 60 cents per ton as the annual crop-producing value of the manure.

A study of crop conditions in Europe indicates that the United States will find a good market for her immense crops of this year. The yield in France promises to be of the average quantity, probably reaching 319,000,000 bushels, and of exceptionally good quality. But on the other hand in Russia, the biggest of the old-world wheat producers, with an average annual output of over 500,000,000 bushels, the prospects are gloomy, the harvest being recorded as inferior in quantity and quality. France and other countries which have a surplus are therefore counting on good prices for their grain, which is the natural expectation in view of the Russian shortage. The latter is likely to have serious consequences economically and politically. A falling off in breadstuffs means additional hardships for the poor and discontent among the people, and Russia would seem to have had enough of both.

The cooperation of the farmers is always desired by the government in its research work, especially in the direction of dealing with pests, and Prof. H. W. Henshaw, of the bureau of biological survey of the agricultural department, makes the following request, to which we are certain our farmer readers will cheerfully respond: "It is well known that many species of rodents which live in colonies, such as prairie dogs, rabbits, porcupines, field mice and rats, are subject at irregular intervals to microbial diseases in the nature of epidemics, which greatly reduce their numbers. The department of agriculture desires to be informed of the presence of such epidemics, with a view to isolating and preserving the microbes for use in destroying mammals injurious to agriculture. You will greatly oblige, therefore, by informing the department of the presence, in your neighborhood, of epidemic diseases among wild mammals, now or at any future time. Such diseases are usually indicated by the presence of numerous sick or dead animals."

Obituary.

On September 24, 1905, The Grim Monarch again claims one of our number. This time it was Sue McGinnis, wife of G. Arthur Thompson, of Penick Ky.

Every care and attention possible was given her by her devoted husband, his noble parents and sisters, during her lingering illness. Yet God decided to take Sue to Himself, and we feel that Heaven was glad to welcome to its sweet confines the pure beautiful soul of our loved one.

Bereft of parents at a tender age, she was reared by her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Goode.

She leaves behind her, an infant son and a host of friends to mourn her loss, while she rejoices in the presence of her Savior with parents, sisters and other loved ones, who preceded her to the Heavenly Kingdom.

"One more at home, That home where separation can not be That home whence none are missed eternally, Lord Jesus grant us all a place with thee At home in Heaven."

The funeral services were conducted at Bethlehem Baptist Church Tuesday afternoon, Rev. A. L. Purdon officiating.

Mules Saved.

In the last issue of the Lebanon Enterprise quite a lengthy article, giving a detailed account of the havoc wrought by the severe wind storm in that county last week, was printed, from which we clip the following paragraph:

Further down the creek lives Mr. Tim Ryan, who about eleven o'clock that night, from his residence, which occupies an elevation overlooking the stream noticed the great rise in the creek, and thought of his neighbor, Mr. Edittor Buckler, whose barn with its twenty-two head of mules stood on a lower ground. The conditions warned him that these mules were in danger and he at once set out for his neighbor's residence, whom he found unconscious of the existing peril to his stock. The word of warning, however, was quickly heeded and when Mr. Ryan and Mr. Buckler reached the barn they found the twenty-two head of mules prancing in water nearly three feet deep and scrambling for higher ground, which it was impossible for them to reach. After considerable effort the stock was rescued. Doubtless, others along this stream had similar startling experiences.

An Awful Cough Cured.

"Two years ago our little girl had a touch of pneumonia, which left her with an awful cough. She had spells of coughing, just like one with the whooping cough and some thought she would not get well at all. We got a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which acted like a charm. She stopped coughing and got stout and fat," writes Mrs. Ora Bussard, Brubaker, Ill. This remedy is for sale by every reliable dealer in the Blue Grass.

No. 165.—113 acres of nice level land, 6 miles from rail road town and county seat, Hodgenville, on pike, 8 acres of timber, very nice seven room house, barn 22x32 feet, ice house and other outbuildings, good orchard. This is a nice little farm, lies well and produces well, and in a good neighborhood. It is a bargain at $2000.

No. 171. 250 acres of fine level land, one and a half miles of railroad town, seven acre brick house, this is number one land, partly bottom and not a foot of waist land on the farm, 100 acres of timber that will make a good payment on the place, located in a good neighborhood, near school and church, plenty of water. I have seen this same kind of land sold for $75 and $100 per acre in other countries. $300 down and good time on the rest. This is dirt cheap, $12500.

LaRue county has over 100000 acres of farming lands that lies well and produces well that is selling cheap as compared with the same grade of land in other countries. The LaRue county is on the eve of a boom and it will not be selling that way long. The Lincoln Park movement is attracting attention this way.
